Community Group Discussion:

1. The subject of blood is central to Christianity. We read about blood in the Bible in many places. We sing songs about blood. We have a monthly service called communion that focuses on blood. And this emphasis on blood is often controversial, in the world, and even in Christian circles. How so?

2. After discussing question one, take time to read today's text, Hebrews 9:11-15. What stands out most to you from this passage?

3. What contrast does the writer make regarding blood in verses 11-12? Why is he making this contrast?

4. In verses 12b-15, we learn that the shedding of Christ's blood produces four results. What is the first result in verse 12a? The second result in verses 13-14? The third result in verse 15a? The fourth result in verse 15b? What must we do to experience these results?

5. Respond to the statement. He didn't set us free to do our own thing. He set us free from doing our own thing. What does that mean and what are some implications of it?

6. As we've done in previous weeks, allow the truth of this passage to guide you in a time of meaningful prayer. Have different people offer both prayers of praise and petition in light of the blood of Christ.
